

We invite you and your baby to join an exciting new research study:
The BabySeq Project.

BabySeq is looking at how to use genome sequencing (DNA testing) as part of well-baby care.

- Understanding a baby's genome can give clues about the baby and their family's health risks now and in the future.
- We are studying the ways BabySeq impacts how people feel, behave, and make any changes to medical care.

We need YOUR help to learn more!

- If you sign up, you and your baby's doctor will learn more about health risks that may run in your family.
- You might learn important ways to help prevent or treat future health problems.
- We will ask you to complete 3 surveys as part of the study and you will receive up to $150.

Please talk to your baby's doctor or contact us to learn more!
